in Graft
Tales of an Actor
by Steven Berkoff

Harry is a dedicated artist, often out of work, rejected and desperate to practise his craft. In Graft - Tales of an Actor, Steven Berkoff, world-renowned actor, director, playwright and author, draws his breath in pain to tell Harry's story, from auditioning at the local Town Hall for a drama school grant, through occasional working highs and low encounters with agents and directors to his final exit at Leicester Square Tube.

George Dillon's Vital Theatre

Since founding Vital Theatre in May 1990 George Dillon has produced and extensively toured 5 highly acclaimed solo shows plus a revival of Berkoff's Decadence and a controversial production of Hamlet. Since first acting in East at Manchester University in 1979 he has worked on 12 productions of Berkoff material, including 3 with Berkoff as an assistant director/performer and 4 World Premieres staged by Dillon.

Dillon has appeared on the Edinburgh Fringe eleven times in 17 productions, his busiest year being 1993 when he gave 45 performances in 4 shows over 23 days. Last year, Dillon's own adaptation of Steven Berkoff's Graft - Tales of an Actor won The Herald 'Angel' award and has since toured in the UK and in Europe.

Dillon has also appeared in films, t.v. and repertory theatre, and conceived and directed an internationally acclaimed solo version of Under Milk Wood. Recent roles include Victor Frankenstein, Johnny Rotten and Charlie Chaplin and a voice-over for the English pilot of the Norwegian cult animation Two Wasted Wankers.

Productions on the Fringe

- Graft - Tales of an Actor [2000] George Dillon's award-winning World Premiere staging of Steven Berkoff's sketches from the life of an ever-struggling actor.
- Hamlet [1995] The greatest tragedy stripped bare. 7 actors, 2 musicians and a talking dog in 2 hours of sex, comedy, murder & madness!
- The Remembrance of Edgar Allan Poe [1993 & 1997] A dream-like tribute to the master of Gothic Horror, woven entirely in Poe's own words.
- Hell & Other Tales [1992 & 1993] Three Berkoff premieres. An actor taking stock of his world, both sides of a sordid brief encounter, and the ultimate appeal for a little sympathy and company.
- Judgement [1991] Barry Collins's epic monologue (three hours with no interval) telling a true story of murder and cannibalism during World War 2.
- Stunning the Punters [& Other Stories] [1990 & 1993] Three stories of imagination run wild. An out-of-work actor's frustration explodes over breakfast, an ex-skinhead tells a tale with a ghostly twist and a would-be suicide dreams of paradise.
- Decadence [1984, 1985 & 1993] After Berkoff and Marlowe, George Dillon and Denise Evans were the first to play in Decadence in 1983. Ten years later, staged on a park bench for negative-equity Britain, this two-hander still hit home.

What the press said

about GRAFT

Dillon's performance holds the audience so rapt that at points I am convinced we collectively stopped breathing. Dillon clowns as much as he grimaces, strutting and fretting his hour upon the stage in a way that is intuitive and inventive - the most compelling storytelling you will see. - The Herald

An assured and confident performance that Berkoff himself would be hard-pressed to top. - Metro

He doesn't hold the stage for an hour and a quarter: he is the stage on which Harry's life unfolds, sweeping the audience along with irresistible force... The text is Berkoff at his best... The play should be compulsory viewing for all who want to take up an acting career... But above all else, excellently written though the play is, it is Dillon's performance which sticks in the mind, a virtuoso performance to cherish and a standard for the rest of the Fringe to live up to! - About.Com

about HELL

In turns funny, harrowing, real and surreal, this daring performance is nothing short of brilliant. - Edinburgh Evening News

Dillon translates powerful prose into disturbing, dangerous theatre. - The Guardian

There's a definite buzz in the sell-out crowd for the opening of a new Berkoff by one of the most-praised solo performers of recent Fringes. If you thought Berkoff was all arch bombast, then try this ... it's both unique and fascinating. - The List

One cannot be unaffected by Dillon's virtuoso performance in this world premiere of Berkoff's monologues. It is a tour de force in which the actor and his material become one and the fusion of life and theatre is complete. - The Scotsman

about DREAM OF A RIDICULOUS MAN

George Dillon is one of the most uncompromisingly compelling performers I have seen. He has the vocal precision of a Gielgud, the physical presence and skill of Marceau, and a heart, mind, and attack that are all his own. - The Guardian

Nowhere in the world will you hear a sharper sermon about human frailty this Sabbath... Dillon commands dramatic effects as if he were Marcel Marceau wired into a Wurlitzer. This is the craft of acting carried to a pinnacle of virtuosity. - Scotland On Sunday

...my spirits are restored by George Dillon's display of theatrical technique, timing and diction of flawless precision... His Dream of a Ridiculous Man is my Fringe discovery. - The Sunday Times

A compelling piece of theatre: make haste to catch it... - The Times

This is one-man theatre at its most intelligent and most powerful. Don't wait to be told about it, or to read another critical paean - go and see for yourself. - What's On In London
